CA CORNER

THE MONEY TRAP

Though life is so short, transient, and uncertain many of us are caught up in a money trap and acquire wealth beyond all our needs and normal requirements. During this process, we have no time left with us to think about anything else or go deeper into ourselves in search of truth and the treasure lying deep within ourselves. Not only that, in our eagerness to become rich, we become so cruel, insensitive, dishonest, and utterly selfish making our life on earth meaningless. Moreover, many of the so-called rich are not in a position to use even a small percentage of their earnings and wealth in their lifetime.

They die with the satisfaction that their children will inherit it and will have a wonderful life unlike them. But with death, all our relationships come to an end. Relationship with a particular individual whether wife, children, or relatives is just a memory. When death takes place, all relationships come to an end. I have listened to many after-death experiences on YouTube and what they say in common is that after death they are in a state of ecstasy with no physical body; nor do they carry their memory with them.

Our education system should be revamped in such a way that at a very young age, the child becomes curious about the unknown phenomenon engulfing us and unifying mankind and that should be our priority concern when we are physically present on this planet. J. Krishnamurthi, the greatest mystic ever born on this planet says that beyond the broken consciousness of each individual and the group consciousness of humanity, there exists a universal intelligence, love, and compassion pervading this universe. This infinite and timeless energy of love, compassion, and intelligence is capable of solving all human problems provided we can establish access to it by transforming our mindset.

MOTIVATIONAL AREA

Exams may seem daunting, but with the appropriate mindset and approach, they can be conquered. To stay motivated and focused during your exam preparation, here are some strategies to consider.

First and foremost, it's important to remember the reason why you started, whether it's to pursue your dream career, achieve academic success, or simply demonstrate your worth. Keep in mind the long-term benefits of putting in the effort now and allow that to propel you forward.

Visualize your success. Take some time each day to imagine yourself acing the exam, feeling confident and proud of your accomplishments. Visualizing success can help boost your confidence and keep you motivated to work hard. Break your study sessions into manageable chunks. Trying to cram everything in at once can quickly lead to burnout and overwhelm. Instead, create a study schedule that allows you to cover all the material while also giving yourself regular breaks to rest and recharge.

Visualize your success. Make an effort each day to imagine yourself successfully passing the exam, feeling self-assured and satisfied with your achievements. Visualizing success is a way to boost your confidence and keep you motivated to work hard. Divide your study sessions into manageable parts. It's possible to quickly experience burnout and overwhelm if you try to cram everything in at once. Make sure to have a study schedule that allows you to cover everything while also taking breaks to rest and recharge. Set achievable objectives for every study session. Break down the material into smaller parts and prioritize mastering a single concept at a time. Celebrate your progress throughout the process, whether it's comprehending a difficult concept or completing a particularly challenging practice problem. Choose a study environment that suits you. There are those who prefer complete silence, while others thrive in a lively coffee shop. To stay focused and productive, experiment with different study environments.

Make sure to take care of both your physical and mental well-being. Get sufficient sleep, eat wholesome meals, and dedicate time to exercise and relaxation. Staying sharp and focused during your study sessions is possible with the proper care of your body and mind. Asking for help is not a sign of weakness. Whether it's reaching out to a teacher or professor for clarification on a difficult concept or seeking support from friends and family, there's no shame in asking for assistance when you need it.

Stay positive and stay persistent. There will inevitably be challenges and setbacks along the way, but it's important to keep a positive attitude and keep pushing forward. Remember that every obstacle you overcome brings you one step closer to your goals.

Finally, don't forget to reward yourself for your hard work. Plan something fun to look forward to after the exam, whether it's a movie night with friends, a weekend getaway, or simply some well-deserved relaxation time. Celebrate your accomplishments and use them as motivation to keep striving for excellence in the future.

In conclusion, exams can be stressful, but with the right mindset and approach, you can overcome any challenge. Stay motivated, stay focused, and believe in yourself. You've got this!

CA INTERMEDIATE- PAPER-5- AUDITING & ETHICS

CA REVATHY RAJA

Compliance of Auditing Standards is mandatory under Companies act, 2013.

Objective of the Standards	Engagement and Quality Control Standards
The standards on auditing, review, other assurance, quality control and related services are aimed towards delivery of high-quality audits by improving the quality of practice by professional accountants and ultimately increase public confidence in financial reporting.	The Auditing and Assurance Standards Board of the ICAI has issued 46 Engagement and Quality Control Standards. These standards have been classified as: (i) Standards on Quality Control (SQC)– To be in applied in ensuring quality by firms that performs audits and Reviews of Historical Financial Information, and Other Assurance and Related Services Engagements. SQC requires that the firm should establish a system of quality control designed to provide it with reasonable assurance that the firm and its personnel comply with professional standards, regulatory, legal requirements, and that reports issued by the firm or engagement partner(s) are appropriate in the circumstances. SQC, therefore sets the tone for enhancing the quality of audit. (ii) Standards on Auditing (SAs) – To be applied in the audit of historical financial information.

	(iii) Standards on Review Engagements (SREs) – To be applied in the review of historical financial information. (iv) Standards on Assurance Engagements (SAEs) – To be applied in assurance engagements, other than audits and reviews of historical financial information. (v) Standards on Related Services (SRSs) – To be applied to engagements involving application of agreed- upon procedures to information, compilation engagements, and other related services engagements, as may be specified by the ICAI.
Compliance with the SAs	Linkage between SAs and Disciplinary Proceedings
While discharging their attest function, it is the duty of the members of the Institute to ensure that the SAs are followed in the audit of financial information covered by their audit reports. If for any reason a member has not been able to perform an audit in accordance with the SAs, his report should draw attention to the material departures therefrom. Auditors are expected to follow SAs in the audits commencing on or after the date specified in the Standard. Further, compliance of SA's are mandatory requirement as per the Companies Act, 2013.	The SAs (as well as other statements on auditing) represent the generally accepted procedure(s) of audit. As such, a member who does not perform his audit in accordance with these statements and fails to disclose the material departures there from, becomes liable to the disciplinary proceedings of the Institute.

THE GIRL NEXT ROW

There she was in her place
Glancing at the laptop screen
Lost in a nether world
Threw my usual gaze as I walked past
Those hairs reminded me
Of all those names I wish to forget
She turned back to give me
eye contact
Along with a chill in spine
Was that a hidden smile
Or just my desperation
taking over
That ravishing smile or extra
sweet voice
When she talks to me
Just throws me of my game
Not that I am an expert in this Haven't felt like this for sometime
Always getting lost in my thoughts
Traveling to a dream land
Of my creation so regularly
Just to loose the grasp of reality
As I know this has to end
Hoping that it's not in a heartbreak
For that is all I could wish for

Memories they say, are like
sweet box
Take one and can't stop from having another

The ones who were with you
But now chose not to be
The ones who were with you
And now you keep them away
The ones who were with you both crave to be together but can't be
And finally
The ones who were with you
And you know they will always be with you

They say, memories are like sweet box

FORGOTTEN WHISPERS

When the rain had just shed,
 And the candlelight waned,
 Did your gaze wander to the door.
 As the radio serenaded an ancient tune,
 Did I find haven in your thoughts.

Did my fragrance linger In the weave of your being?
 Did you wish for me to be near?
 Buried amidst unkept promises,
 A phantom from once a vivid dream.

Like the first bud of a cherry tree,
 In the sanctum of your heart, did I bloom? When your fingers traced the fading rose, Did my laughter echo through the rooms.
 Or were my whispered nothings forgotten,
 Nothing more than a fleeting dance?
 Am I, but a phantom
 From once a vivid dream?

SHORT STORY

Garden of Support

In the heart of Elmridge, a small town nestled between rolling hills and whispering trees, there existed a forgotten plot of land. This plot, hidden away from the bustling streets, became the unlikely setting for a story of resilience, friendship, and growth.

A group of friends, each with their unique stories and struggles, noticed the neglected space and saw an opportunity for something beautiful. With shovels in hand and determination in their hearts, they decided to transform this overlooked piece of land into a sanctuary for women seeking support - a place they lovingly named "The Garden of Support."

The women gathered on a crisp spring morning, armed with seeds of hope and dreams of renewal. Each woman carefully selected a flower that resonated with her journey - a sunflower for strength, a daisy for simplicity, a rose for resilience. Planting these seeds became a symbolic act, a shared commitment to growth and solidarity.

As the seasons unfolded, so did the bonds among the women. They met regularly in the garden, not just to tend to the flowers but to share the stories that had shaped them. In the shade of an old oak tree, they exchanged advice, offered encouragement, and shared laughter. The garden became a refuge, a safe space where they could be themselves, free from judgment.

The act of nurturing the garden, once a neglected space, became a metaphor for the women's own journeys. The flowers flourished, mirroring the strength and beauty that emerged from their collective experiences. What started as a simple endeavor transformed into a powerful testament to unity and support.

As the town embraced the Garden of Support, it became a symbol of resilience, a symbol of connection in the heart of Elmridge. The once-forgotten plot had bloomed into a vibrant haven, not just for the flowers but for the women who found solace, strength, and sisterhood within its blossoming embrace.

In the heart of Elmridge, the Garden of Support stood as a living testament to the transformative power of connection, proving that sometimes, the simplest seeds of friendship and understanding could cultivate a garden of profound community and empowerment.

A Women's Day Letter

Dear Ma'am,

In the era where it is advised to sort out the whole trajectory of one's life to each inch, where the idea of letting the flow run along its course is out rightly abused, where it is taught to undermine success stories and sweep failures under the rug, I had my person, who has taught me to unlearn the outdated modesty around success and the taboo around occasional hiccups in life. You have been my cheerleader through it all, celebrated every small win and accepted my failures.

This letter can only reflect a teeny tiny speck of love and thankfulness I feel, for a few hundreds of words will definitely fall short for penning my love towards you.

Your love and care inspires me to accomplish things traditionally assumed difficult.

They say love has the power to move mountains. It might have the power to move mountains but the true strength exhibited by love shines upon when despite the harsh weather there remains a person and their love at the other side of the horizon pulling one out of any misery, for this life is only beautiful with you by my side.

You're the best!!

Lovingly,

Your Girl.
